

[Partner 2 name],

You always tell me that the world needs someone like me, but today I'm going to tell you why I need and love you. We're beginning a new life together, my love, but I wouldn't be the person I am now without you. From the very beginning, you were able to see me for who I really am—and you loved and accepted me for it.

When everything was new and we talked so late that even the stars couldn't stay up with us, you didn't just listen to me—you listened to my soul. You inspired me to climb to new heights and do things I wasn't sure I could do. You cared for me in ways I couldn't have imagined were possible.

I love that you remember the little milestones and anniversaries that so often slip from my mind, the way you surprise me with flowers for no reason other than to make me happy, and the way that you're always willing to work to make our relationship the best it can be. You even learned to cook seafood for me even though you don't eat it.

I'll never be able to eat your Coca Cola chicken, but I can promise that I'll support you in whatever you do, be the best wife I can for you, and love you with every ounce of strength I have.

I love you, [Partner 2 full name], and I'm beyond ready and excited to marry you.